

Follow This Sign For Two of Goldeneye's Main Attractions...

June 21, 2011, by Rebecca Wallwork

Everywhere you turn at Goldeneye, the former home of Bond creator Ian Fleming, there are stunning views. But if you're lucky enough to spend time at the luxe resort in Oracabessa, Jamaica, it's this sign that will lead you to some of Goldeneye's best eye candy.

Tucked under the bridge that leads from the resort's open-air 'reception', over the lagoon to Low Cay Beach is the Wata Sport Beach, and this is where you'll find Dane and Dave Fletcher. These young gents will set you up for any of the water-based diversions Goldeneye has on tap, from snorkeling and kayaking to jetskiing or a tour of the coral reef on the resort's house boat, Glasseye.

We weren't the only ones to be captivated by the Wata Sports twins either (yes, they're identical!). InStyle mag deemed them worthy of an appearance in a fashion shoot with Joy Bryant...

Dane and Dave pictured with Joy Bryant in InStyle magazine

The Fletcher twins--along with every other member of the Goldeneye staff we encountered--are laidback, friendly and full of local insight and advice. Their habit of saying "yeah mon" just makes them that much more endearing.

To meet the guys and indulge in wata sports at Goldeneye, rates throughout the summer start at $448 a night for a Lagoon Suite. The beachfront cottages are larger and considered more desirable, but if you check into a Lagoon Suite, you can dive straight into the water from your patio.

And swim on over to the Wata Sport Beach in a matter of minutes...

[Photos: HotelChatter; Goldeneye on Facebook; Instyle]